(e.g. a physics engine) If you are planning on testing the game, be aware that it is on early access, and not working as intended yet. (missing features and bugs) I'm looking for feedback on my other games, which you can find on Youtube under the channels "Thiefcrest" and "Arclight88".

of the Fittest The Return: Survival of the Fittest is the fourth studio album by Guns N' Roses and is the first entirely new material to be released in nearly nine years. The album was released on September 29, 2013 on Frontiers Records. The band had performed the album in its entirety at their first concert since their reunion in May 2012. During this tour, the band presented a new song called "The Passenger", which was eventually released a month later as the album's lead single. The band will reportedly play the album in its entirety during its three stadium shows in South America the end of September and October. Background and recording According to lead singer Axl Rose, the album was recorded with producer Rick Rubin "where the fancy is taken off," adding that "there's no bullshit on this record." In November 2012, guitarist Slash confirmed that he had written material for the album at that point. The band, with the behind-the-scenes help of its new management company, Swan Song Entertainment, began to track in January 2013. Gigs were also played throughout this time. As such, the band had not played their entire new album in front of real people until at least 4 April 2013 when they played two songs from the new album, "Chinese Democracy" and "You're Crazy". On April 4, 2013, the band gave the first press conference since 1999, where they officially announced that they would be playing one song per night, including two new songs, until its release date on September 29, 2013. The aforementioned "Chinese Democracy" came first, followed immediately by "You're Crazy". After the press conference, the band began to play their new album in its entirety for the first time since 1999 at the Fuse Theater in Santa Ana, California. They also performed "Don't Cry" and "I Don't Want to Change the World" as an encore. On June 14, the band embarked on a co-headlining tour with label mates Metallica with a few nights in Brazil, followed by a few nights in Germany with Iron Maiden. Vocalist Axl Rose made several high profile remarks in the Rolling Stone magazine about the band and their popularity in 2013, stating: "God, it feels good to be working again. It's the best thing in the world." Rose also stated the album title had to do with his childhood best friend who committed suicide and had drifted away for years, to which he said, "I didn't want to lose that last
